Poetry.

Crape on the Door.

Somebody's dead, there's crape on the door,
The blinds are half closed on a neighboring store;
Some one in sorrow of a loved one bereft,

Gone from this world, its care and its strife,
Gone from the dear ones beloved during life;
Gone to a home with the ransomed above,
Gone to a Saviour whose fullness is love.

Closed be the eyes of the sleeper to-day,
Silent the home where the lvoed one doth lay;
There is a season of weeping for one
Whose troubles are ended, whose labors are done.

Heavy the footfall as each on his way,
Treads the brick pavement light hearted to-day;
Little they heed the half-blinded store,
Little they care for the crape on the door.

Little care they in the battle of life,
Ardently fighting 'mid turmoil and strife.
Little care they who never look back,
With eyes firmly fixed on life's beaten track.

Onward they rush, till in reaching life's bound,
They slacken the footstep and quiet its sound;
Ceasing their efforts their labors give o'er,
Pass them by gently, there's crape on the door.

Selected Story.

Deceived by Appearances; or, the Aristocrat and Laborer.

Never judge a man by the quality of his clothes. If a man is habited in a garb filthy and ragged, that is one thing; but the simple garb of labor may cover the best of men. Among the many unfortunate mistakes which have been made in this latter respect, is the following, which happened within my own knowledge and observation:

Christopher Goodhue, at the age of forty, had amassed a fortune in mercantile pursuits, and had lost his health. His physician had told him he must leave the city, and quit his present business. Said the man of medicine:

"Of course you must have employment; and that, too, of a kind that shall exercise your best business faculties. Now I think, my dear Mr. Goodhue, that I have just the thing for you. You have been at Walker's Falls, up in Franklin?"

"Yes."

"Well, those large mills are for sale—both the woollen mill and the paper mill, together with a machine shop belonging to them. The owner is dead, and his widow wishes to sell. Two hundred thousand dollars, cash, I am very sure will buy the whole property. You can pay that, and yet have enough left to make you independent of want or forced labor while you live. And then, if you buy, you will naturally improve two or three excellent water privileges which are now idle. Think of it, my dear Sir—a healthy, salubrious and invigorating mountain air; a retired and delightful location; fish and game of all sorts ready to your rod and gun whenever you feel like relaxation and recreation; and the very best school in the country for your children."

Mr. Goodhue [illegible] but, like a prudent man, he said he would speak with his wife. He did so, and she, sensible woman, said, "Let us get away from the city. We can be very happy in the free, fresh air; and not only you, but your children and myself, will be better and stronger."

So Christopher Goodhue went up to Walker's Falls, in the beautiful village among the mountains, and bought up the mills, together with all the unimproved water-power; and within two weeks thereafter he had removed thither with his family, and entered at once, heart and soul, into the work of improvement.

"Now, Molly," he said to his wife, "you know I have come up here for healthful exercise, and I shall hire men to do the drudgery of close office work. We must fix up around the house. I am going to dig and delve in the garden. So you must make a pair of blue overalls and a frock. I must dress for the work I do."

Mrs. Goodhue smiled; but the cheerful and pleasant notes of her husband, already vimmy and robust, made her heart glad, and she and the girls set at work, cheerfully and merrily, upon the clothing for the new laboring man.

People were rejoiced when they knew that a wealthy business man from the distant city had bought the mills; because those same mills, employing nearly two hundred hands, were the life of the place; and the real good and prosperity of other business depended, in a great measure, upon their thrift and successful management.

The principal store at Walker's Falls was kept by a man named Ralph Stover. He had managed to work into the bulk of trade through the partiality of the former proprietor of the mills, with whom he had shared the high profits on goods sold upon order to the employees of the mills. He was an honest man as the world goes; but with him honesty was policy, and nothing more.

Eben Shackford kept the other proper store—and when I say "proper store," I mean a regular country store, where goods of all kinds, qualities and varieties are kept, and where farmers can dispose of all sorts of transportable produce. Shackford was truly an honest man—honest from the very inmost instincts of his heart. With him honesty was not so much a principle as a part of his nature. He had not laid up money. His trading was mostly confined to an old run of customers among the neighboring farmers, while those persons who had money to pay for their goods had been monopolized by the more stirring and scheming Stover.

"I declare," said Stover, "I must go and see Mr. Goodhue, and make some arrangement for securing his custom and his orders. I calculate his trade and influence will be worth more than a thousand dollars a year clear profit. He must have got settled down by this time and ready for business. I wish I knew what sort of a man he is. But I guess I shall know how to take him after I've studied him a while. I can read human nature pretty easily."

The trader was preparing to leave when a laboring man entered the store—a man habited in blue overalls and frock, and wearing upon his head an old straw hat.

"Mr. Stover, I think?" said the newcomer.

"That's my name."

The laboring man started at the abruptness and bruskness of the tone. He was not used to being answered in that way; nor was he used to hearing traders speak so to a customer.

"I want to get a little paint, if you please, Sir; I'm——"

"My boy will attend to you; I am busy."

"But, Sir, your boy may be as competent of the compounds I require as I am. I am going to paint a floor, and I only know that I want some yellow ochre, some lithrage, and——"

"I am not a painter, Sir," broke in Mr. Stover, roughly. "My boy will put up whatever you want."

"Then you cannot accomodate a customer with the benefit of your knowledge concerning the respective quantities of various articles he may require for a specified purpose?"

"Knowledge isn't one of my trading commodities. You'll find that at the academy. Here, John, if this man wants anything, sell it to him." And thus speaking, Mr. Stover put on his hat, and left the store, evidently thinking that his customer, whom he had never before seen, was either an itinerant laboring man or a farmer from the back region, who would want to pay for his goods in poplar wood or old potatoes.

Ralph Stover went to the mills, where he found an architect and an engineer from the city superintending extensive improvements. But Mr. Goodhue was not there. They thought it likely he was at his house. So to the house Mr. Stover wended his way, where he was informed by a lady that if Mr. Goodhue had got back from an errand, upon which he had been out, he would probably be found in the garden.

Next to the garden, where our enterprising trader found a man in blue overalls and frock, engaged in making a flower bed.

"Is Mr. Goodhue about here?"

"That is my name, Sir."

"But I mean the man who owns the place—who owns the mills."

"I am the man."

"You, eh?" Mr. Stover beheld the customer to whom he behaved so indecently at his store.

"Really, Mr. Goodhue, I had no idea,—I had——"

"If you have business with me, Sir," interrupted Goodhue, respectfully, but sternly, "I will attend to you; otherwise my time is very precious."

"Upon my soul, Mr. Goodhue, I must ask your pardon."

"If I wish to trade with you I will call at your store. I suffer no man to inflict his begging for custom upon me at my own house. Good day, Sir."

And while Mr. Goodhue returned to his work, Ralph Stover had read his man well enough to know that any future remark would be worse than useless; so he turned moodily and unhappily away.

Mr. Goodhue found Eben Shakford to be an honest, upright, conscientious and accomodating trader, and with him he made arrangements for the supply of goods for himself and workmen.

Shackford throve, and was grateful and happy. The laborers in the mills obtained their goods vastly cheaper than ever before; while Ralph Stover, in bitterness of spirit, curses the hour in which he was led to insult a customer who [illegible] erb of a laboring man.

How Noted Men Become Rich.

Many years ago a young Scotch emigrant arrived in New York, penniless. He was a mechanic, and labored at his trade without getting more than a living. One day he saw a man selling flowers in the market, and being passionately fond of them, he bought a pot for a trifle and trudged home with it. A gentleman who met him was attracted by the beauty of the flower and asked the price. The mechanic named a small advance, and the gentleman at once purchased it. This trifling incident led the mechanic to the flower trade, and he became a florist and founded a seed and gardening establishment, which has been kept up for sixty years. Those who are acquainted with his history will recognize in the humble individual referred to, no less a personage than Grant Thorbon. These instances are not confined to New York, Fair banks, when keeping a country store was obliged to tinker his own scales in order to get a correct balance, and this led him to making a new one of his own invention. From this beginning has grown up the great establishment of St. Johnsbury, which now furnishes a large part of the country with implements.

To come to this city. John Jacob Astor was led in a similar way to that speciality which made him rich. He was selling toys, when he met a man who had some very fine furs. His attention was arrested by this article, and he learned that they could be purchased of the Indians at a very low rate. He knew their value in London, and soon commenced dealing in furs, which he continued until he controlled the market on both sides of the ocean. Had John Jacob Astor folllowed the predilections of most of his countrymen he would have opened a corner grocery and sold sugar soap.

Our Strength in God.

Poor and miserable as this life is, we have all of us free access to all that is great, and good, and happy; and we carry within ourselves the key to all the treasures that heaven can bestow. We starve in the midst of plenty—groan under infirmities, with the remedy in our own hands—we live and die without knowing and feeling anything of the one only God, while we have it in our power to know and enjoy it really and truly as we know and feel the power of this world. For heaven is as near to our souls as this world is to our bodies. God, the only Good of all intelligent natures, is not an absent or distant God, but is more present to and in our souls than our own bodies; and we are strangers to heaven and without God in the world, for this only reason, that we want the spirit of prayer, which alone can, and which never fails to unite us with the one only God, and to open heaven and the kingdom of God within us. A root set in the finest soil and the best climate, and blessed with all that sun, air, and rain can do for it is not in so sure a way of its growth to perfection as every man may be who appears after that which God is ready and infinitely desirous to give him. For the sun meets not the springing bud that stretches towards him with half that certainty with which God, the source of all good, communicates Himself to the soul that longs to partake of Him.—Law's "Spirrit of Prayer" as quoted in "Reason in Religion."

A clergyman having preached during Lent in a small town where he had not once been invited to dinner, said, in a sermon exhorting his parishioners against being led away by the prevailing vices of the age, "I have preached against every vice but luxurious living, having had no opportunity of observing to what extent it is carried in this town."

The Fall of Strasbourg.

The surrender of Strasbourg to the Prussians, which for some weeks past has been regarded as inevitable, was made on the 27th ult. The surrender is thus described by a correspondent who entered the city with the besieging army:

"From the 24th ult., the bombardment was terrific and almost incessant. Night and day nothing was heard save the hollow roar of the cannons and mortars, followed by the sharp noise made by the shells as they burst in mid-air over the devoted city and fell upon the devoted defenders. This tremendous cannonading had full effect. A breach was made in the walls large enough to admit an army, and it became evident that the storming of the place, even if it involved a great sacrifice of life, was inevitable. Continued resistance could only stay the fate of capitulation [illegible] hours at farthest. On [illegible], a few minutes before [illegible] afternoon, the German [illegible] the joyful sight of a white [illegible] from the cathedral. This was [illegible] followed by the same token from the citadel. Firing instantly ceased, and the next moment a sudden and profound silence followed the hitherto steady booming of the artillery. General attention being called to the flags by the unusual manner in which they were exhibited, the truth of the situation was at once guessed. Tremendous cheers rose from one portion of the besieging lines. They were caught up and echoed throughout the entire army. The scene was indescribably exciting. The officers sprang to their feet, embraced each other and clasped one another's hands. The men speedily followed their example, and some of them shed tears of joy at the great triumph which was about to be achieved. Before long came the news that the surrender was a fact."

Strasbourg is an exceedingly interesting old town; interesting in its history and in its monuments, although having nothing picturesque or striking in its situation. It is about a mile and a half from the river Rhine, on the Ill, which flows directly through the city. It is three hundred miles east of Paris. The city was founded by the Romans, under Augustus, and was regarded as an important post, and as such it has been held by different nations from that time to the present. It was attacked and destroyed by Attila. It became a free city in the time of Charlemagne, and long maintained an independent republican government. It was seized by Louis the XIV., and annexed to France in 1681, since which time it has often changed hands temporarily, and the region around and near it has re-echoed the din of furious conflict age after age. Its fortifications, begun by the Romans, were strengthened by the Franks, and improved in successive centuries, until they received a crowning addition in the grand citadel designed by the genius of the celebrated Vauban. It was considered impregnable, until the invention of the latest rifled artillery of heavy calibre. Its outer works extend to the Ill, and are connected with sluices, [illegible] of which the whole country intervening between them and the Rhine could be flooded with water—a result that the Prussians labored during the recent siege to prevent by diverting the Ill from its course.

It has been resorted to by travellers chiefly on account of the buildings and monuments which it contains. The city itself has a very quaint, ancient aspect, but it has some magnificent buildings, the chief among which is the cathedral. Its spire is the highest in the world, being 466 feet in height. Altogether it is one of the grandest and most remarkable ecclesiastical edifices in the world. It was originally founded by Clovis in A. D. 504; reconstructed by Charlemagne, who built the grand choir, nearly ruined by lightning in A. D. 1007, and again remodelled, as it now stands, in 1015. The body of the edifice was finished in 1439. Its construction, and especially the ornamentation, was the conjoint work of Erwin von Steinbach and his daughter Sabina, who continued its execution after her father's death in 1318. The glory of completing it belonged to John Hultz, in 1439. He was an architect of Cologne, summoned all the way to Strasbourg to finish the task, and paid his weight of gold for its performance. Its construction is of itself a pattern of the varied building of the ages, from the Byzantine style, revealed in the mouldings of the choir, to the pure Gothic, of which the rosettes are seen in full expanse upon its facade, and on the fronts of its lateral doorways.

The artronomical clock, a large structure within the cathedral itself, some fifty feet in height, has been one of the modern wonders of the world. It represented the motions of the globe, the sun and the moon, in their regular circuit. The day of the week, the circle of the sun, the year of the world and of our Lord, the equinoctials; the leap year, the movable feasts and the dominical letter, were all clearly exhibited by this clock. The eclipses of the sun and moon and the motions of the planets were also displayed. Thus, on Sunday, the sun was drawn about in his chariot, and so drawn into another place that before he was quite hidden you had Monday. There was also a dial for the minutes of the hour, so that you could see every minute pass. Two images of children appeared on each side, one with a sceptre counting the hours. One cherup turned an hour glass at the expiration of each hour. A figure representing Time struck the hour, and figures around it representing boyhood and old age, struck the quarters. Under the first gallery of the clock the symbolic deity of each day stepped out of a niche when the morning dawned—Apollo on Sunday, Diana on Monday, &c. The great performance took place at noon of each day. In a niche near the top of the clock sat an image of the Saviour. When the hour of twelve arrived, the twelve apostles in order came out from a side door, each one bowing to the Saviour in passing, and entering a door on the other side, disappeared. A cock perched upon then top the flapped his wings and crowed three times, so loud and shrill that his notes rang through the vast cathedral and were heard in every part of the building; this was the signal for the crowd to disperse. To what extent this wonderful piece of mechanism is injured, we do not know; but we see it stated that the cathedral itself, and probably the clock, are far less injured than was reported.

The extensive and valuable library was not much injured, the most valuable books having been removed to a place of safety when the siege commenced. We regret to learn that the Protestant Church of St. Thomas was destroyed by shells. This church contained the tombs of Marshal Saxe, and of the brother of the famous pastor Oberlin and of Schoepflen, and the bodies of the Count of Nassau Saarwerden and his daughter, under glass cases and visible in public. They are exhibited as great curiosities, their flesh and clothes having remained in excellent preservation for more than four hundred years. This was the main Protestant edifice of the city. The tomb of Marshal Saxe was surmounted by a splendid piece of sculpture, representing death, in the form of a skeleton, opening a coffin lid, the Marshal walking down into the tomb, and France under the form of a beautiful figure holding him back. This was erected by Louis XV. There were several notable [illegible] in the city, one of the fine[illegible] a statue in bronze of Jo[illegible] the modern inventor [illegible] ce of the same na[illegible] the Marche berg cor[illegible]et). Guttembourg in 1436, and [illegible] proved there by John Schoffer, a resident of the same city. The statue is one of the finest works of David d'Angers, whose genius was the pride of his time. The bronze statue in the Place d'Armes or Place Kleber, of Kleber, the brilliant general whose early death removed one of the most noted competitors of the First Napoleon for military renown; the tomb of Conrad the Emperor, in the grand Cathedral, with a long list of historical paintings by masters of the German school, were also attractive to intelligent visitors. The Mairie and Prefecture, endowed with a museum of Italian and German paintings, stand in the Brandgasse or Street of the Burning, so called because is 1348 more than 2,000 unfortunate Israelites, against whom persecution was then terribly severe, were there burned alive in a huge bonfire on the charge of having poisoned the wells and fountains of the city, and having caused the pestilence which about that time devastated it. Not far from the Mairie is the magnificent synagogue erected by Jewish citizens in 1834, as though to mark the difference in their condition brought about by the lapse of 500 years. The Public Library near the Temple Neuff, or new House of Worship, had 110,000 volumes, and among them some of the rarest works and missale of the middle ages, with Gothic and Byzantine illuminations, and some rare imprints of Bibles and classic authors, by Faust and by Egglestein, of 400 years back date. Along with these is a collection of Roman antiquities found in Alsatia and precious specimens of curious stained glass. The Academie, founded in 1538 and made a University in 1621, was the scene of Goethe's completion of his collegiate course and his gradution as a Doctor of Laws in 1772, while such illustrious names as Oberlin, Schoepflen, and many of scarcely less note are on its records. Strasbourg is often mentioned in the history of the Reformation and the lives of the Reformers.

Outside of the city was a beautiful park, shaded by magnificent old trees. As we were seated under their pleasant shade in May last, we casually made the remark that in case of war, all these beautiful trees would be cut down. This remark was made without a thought of the present war; but the surroundings of the city are now a scene of destruction, and its interior, although not so much injured as reported, must have suffered greatly from the long and terrific bombardment it has received.

Strasbourg, according to present appearances, will become a permanent possession of Prussia. The French express great determination never to give up a particle of territory, while much which they now possess has been taken from other kingdoms; and Prussia, should she lay claim to Alsace, will simply be [illegible] what was once, and is now German. But the issues of the war [illegible] not be determined.

Important Newspaper Change

The Hearth and Home, a finely illustrated family journal of a high character, hitherto issued by Messrs. Pettengill, Bates & Co., has been purchased by Messrs. Orange Judd & Co., of 245 Broadway, New York, the well-known publishers of the American Agriculturist. Messrs. S. M. Pettengill & Co., whose great Advertising Agency, established in 1849, is one of the largest and most reputable in the world, find that their extensive business requires their exclusive attention, and they therefore transfer Hearth and Home to the new publishers, whose long experience and abundant facilities will enable them not only to maintain the past high character of the paper, but to add materially to its value. The new publishers also announce a reduction of the terms to $3 per year. The change will not at all effect the American Agriculturist, which will continue on independently as heretofore. The illustrations and reading matter of the two journals will be entirely different. Either of the journals will be furnished from now to the end of 1871 (15 months), at the yearly subscription rate, viz: The Weekly Hearth and Home at $3; the Monthly American Agriculturist, 1,50; or the two for $4.

A Legal Anecdote.

In the early days of Vermont jurisprudence the strict decorum which now very generally distinguishes the New England bar, was comparitively unknown. Nothing was more common than sharp altercation between the bench and the bar; such wranglings, indeed, as would now be termed "contempt of court," were they to occur only between the lawyers themselves. On one occasion Judge Turner, who was the plain "Esquire," had addressed a sound argument to the court and sat down. The Judge, who chose to argue the question rather than decide it at once, replied in a feeble argument which the lawyer in his turn demolished. The Judge rejoined by repeating without any material variation, his first reply, and then "closed the pleadings" by an adverse decision.

"Your Honor's two arguments," said Turner, addressing himself partly to the bar, remind me of a story. A foolish old woman in Connecticut, being one evening at a party, was greatly at a loss for something to say. At length she ventured to inquire of a gentleman who sat near her whether his mother had any children. The gentleman politely pointed out the absurdity of her inquiry. "I beg pardon," exclaimed the old lady, perceiving her mistake, "you don't understand me: I meant to inquire whether your grandmother had any children."—Harper's Drawer.

"Napoleon's sun has set"—We have always thought that was about the best thing the "noble infant" could do.

The Unpopular Poet.

Nobody knew him two centuries ago, for the English people were not great readers. Few had ever heard of him.—Those who had heard of him—King Charles and his courtiers among the number—shrugged their shoulders at mention of his name. He had mingled in politics, had made himself a power in prose if not in verse, and had unluckily for his fortunes taken the losing side. He had been for Cromwell and the Commonwealth, and his fortune had been wrecked by the Restoration. He kept a little school for day scholars in Bridecourt, Fleet street. He was old and blind.

To speak of him, except with disrespect as a Roundhead and a bad subject, was to incur the suspicion of the court

SUCCESS IN LIFE.

Means and ways are abundant to every man's success, if will and actions are rightly adapted to them. Our rich men and our great men have carved their paths to fortune, and by this internal principle—a principle that cannot fail to reward him who resolutely pursues it. To sigh or repine over the lack of inheritance is unmanly. Every man should be CREATOR instead of inheritor. He should bequeathe instead of borrow. He should be conscious of the power in him, and fight his own battles with his own lances. He should feel that it is better to earn a crust than to inherit coffers of gold. When once this spirit of [illegible] every man will discover within himself the elements and capacities of wealth. He will be rich, inestimably rich in self-resources, and can lift his head proudly to meet the noblest of men. Young man! take earnestly hold of life. You are capacitated for and destined to a high and noble purpose.

OUR RAILROAD ENTERPRIZE.

Our readers will remember that we have several times, previously to this, urged the importance, in many points of view, of building a railroad from this place to Weldon.

We think we are now able to present the work in a more favorable light than heretofore, and to show conclusively, not only the fesibility of the work, but the certainty with which it can, and will be done. Our readers are aware, that a railroad has already been chartered from Edenton to Suffolk,—a depot on the Seaboard and Roanoke Road,—and we now learn from reliable authority, that a sufficient amount of money has been subscribed by responsible parties, to survey this road, and grade it. The survey will commence this week. With the grading done, there will, of course, be no difficulty, in procuring the iron and rolling stock for the road in a short time. This road will run within 24 miles of Elizabeth City so that, by getting the consent of the stockholders of the Edenton road (which can be easily done) to connect our road with theirs, we shall really have to build but 24 miles of road, to put us in communication with Norfolk, Weldon, and all parts of the United States. Suffolk, on the Seaboard and Roanoke road is 17 miles from Norfolk, and our road would tap the Edenton one, say 10 miles from Suffolk, and we should thus be within 50 miles of Norfolk by Rail, and within 114 miles of Weldon, or, within 17 miles of being as near Weldon, as Norfolk is.

Now with all the advantages which would occur to our section from building this road which we previously presented to our readers, and the small cost of building a road only 24 miles long over a perfectly level country requiring no grading, and crossing no stream of water more than 30 feet wide, and only two of these, we think we can safely assure our readers, that the road will be built and that soon.

It thus behoves all our people hereabouts to bestir themselves in the work, subscribe the money they have to [illegible] railroad ties, &c., and let us all make a long, and strong pull together, and success is certain.

Orleans in possession of the Prussians is another vital blow to France. On the 10th a battle was fought about twelve miles north of the city, and on the skirts of the forest which environs it. The defeated French General was on Tuesday driven out of the forest which he vowed to defend "at any cost. The victorious Prussians followed up their success to the suburbs of the city. Barricades had been erected, behind which the beaten troops took refuge, but the fire of the Prussian cannon proved too much for them, and as they went out and made their retreat by the left bank of the Loire, the Prussians went in, and now hold possession of the fifth in importance of the great cities of France. With a characteristic energy contrasting strongly with the lax combinations of the French troops, the invaders have already advanced about twenty miles on their way to Tours, following the line of thr Loire and the railroad connecting the cities. An early removal of the Provisional Government into Normandy or Brittany may, therefore, be expected.

Skilled labor in this country is coming to be supreme ruler. It is rising in dignity and, of consequence, in importance, yearly. But a little while ago a farmer was despised, and a mechanic was a "clod pate." Then manuel labor was degrading, and "the upper crust" in society was the class of consumers. That day in this country went to its setting with American slavery. It was a power when it culminated, of great degredation, wherein labor suffered untold cruelties and honest industry underwent martyrdom; for he who earned his bread was less respected than he who cheated for it. But liberty helped labor, and labor rewarded liberty, and now and forevermore in this Republic they travel hand in hand.

How many centuries have rolled away during which millions on millions of laboring men, in order to reach present results, have been tasked to death because the manner and method of their work were cruel and lacking in contrivance. Now, however, a new day has come. Never before was the genius of man so wrought upon to enact skillful insturments for the saving of human labor; never was it so liberally rewarded with success.

THE DEATH OF GENERAL LEE.

General ROBERT E. LEE departed this life at Lexington, Va., on the 12 inst, aged sixty three years. The event has caused a profound sensation throughout the South, for he was a great favorite—enjoyed the respect and confidence—love and veneration—of the Southern people as few other men have done. In many respects he was a remarkable man. Originally opposed to secession and by no means a promoter of the rebelion, he hesitated until the last instant. In yielding, he made what we shall always feel to have been the great mistake of his life. It certainly was not from any desire for personal glory nor from any ambition to form a new empire, but it was a yielding to a mistaken notion that his first adhesive was to his native State. But all this is of the past and we have no desire to recall unpleasant recollections now that the great hero—for he was a hero—is dead.

Because of his unobtrusive, dignified, manly and modest course since the war—his honor—able acceptance of the situation and his example to his countrymen to do the same, we confess that we felt an increasing respect and admeration for the man, and we sincerely regret that he should have been so soon called away. Nor do we at all marvle that the gallant people that made him their leader should feel and express [illegible] at his grave. Though unalterably opposed to his acts which give him a name in history, we fully pay this tribute to his memory.

"HEALTH IS WEALTH."

Messrs. E. B, Treat & Co., Publishers of First-Class Subscription Books, No. 654 Broadway, New York, have sent us a copy of their New Family Medical Work entitled Our Home Physician, a new and popular guide to the art of preserving health and treating disease, with plain advice for all the medical and surgical emergencies of the family. By Geo. M. Beard' A. M., D., Lecturer on nervous Diseases in the University of the city of New York, Member of the New York County Medical Society, assisted in the various departments by eminent medical authorities.

In scope and character this work is new, full and comprehensive; in style, clear and intelligible; and throughout it is emphatically common sense and practical. The sections relating to hygiene—the preservation of health, prevention and treatment of disease, etc., etc.,—are full and explicit, and brought down to the latest dates, and seem to us especially good and adapted to the wants of the people. We know of no other medical guide for popular use, that at all approaches it. The work is illustrated, and is sold through agents, (either local or traveling), and we bespeak for it a ready sale in this community. We presume such of our readers as desire copies, can, by writing directly to the publishers, arrange for the same. We close our review of this most excellent work by quoting the following from a late number of The New Orleans Daily Times:

"The work appears to have been written and compiled with conscientious care. Though its matter occupies a thousand pages, we find nothing in it which could have been omitted with propriety or presented in fewer words. If it could be placed in every house in America, it would save many hundreds of lives every year, besides preventing or relieving an amount of suffering beyond all estimate. We all know the cheering effect of the appearance of the Doctor, and how, in his presence, the face of patients and attendants lighten up with confidence and hope. Something of this same comforting and wholesome effect will be produced by this Home Physician, which, though it has no pleasant voice or tender hand, is yet always present with its silent counsel and careful prescriptions. In the present age of enlightenment the faculty look with liberal favor upon works intended to [illegible] such information as Dr. Beard's work contains. Reference to diseases, remedies and other subjects is facilitated by means of a carefully prepared index. There are fifty or sixty pages of prescriptions, a list of medicines and the form and quantity in which they are used, a glossary of the few scientific and professional terms made use of in the body of the work, and some hundreds of engravings. The author has had personal experience in the treatment of yellow fever and other southern and tropical diseases."

WHO IS IT!

A late issue of the New York Tribune contains the following item. Who is it? What is his name?

It is impossible to foretell what an Englishman crossed in love may resort to. Here is a bold but unfortunate British wooer who has taken up his residence in the very center of the Dismal Swamp, far away from the beer and beef and beauty of Albion. What he does to pass away the time we do not know. Probably he shoots a little and swears a great deal. It would be o good thing for him if he could meet Tom Moore's lady, of the Swamp aforesaid, who "all night long by her fire-fly lamp paddles her light canoe." This mysterious woman must be verging by this time upon the venerable; but age and fat, in an Englishman's eyes, are not always an objection.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

The October elections have not disappointed us. They have—with the exception of Indiana, which is still in doubt—re-echoed the thunders of September. Pennsylvania remains solidly Republican, and while there are two or three losses in her Congressional delegation, there is at least one gain. The Democracy confidently expected to gain eight. Ohio stands by the Administration by an emphatic vote; and while there have been some losses there have been sufficient gains to make her delegation to the 42nd Congress stand about as it does now. Iowa is firm and true with a Republican gain. It is possible that Indiana has gone Democratic though it is still in doubt. The Republicans still claim it. On the whole we condole with the Democratic party on the gloomy prospects before it.

ONE RESULT.

During the eighteen months of Grant's Administration there has been a decrease of taxation, and yet eighty-seven million dollars more of revenue were collected than in the same space of time of Johnson's Presidency. This sum represents the amount of stealing and wastefulness that Grant ended. With it bonds have been bought, the national debt reduced, credit improved and $5,000,000 of annual interest stopped.

Foreign War News.

From the papers of the 11th we learn that a Berlin dispatch says that Marshal Bazaine is endeavoring to open a path into Belgium. La Liberte says several sorties have been made by the French, and the Prussian dispatches are silent on affairs at Metz in consequence. Prince Frederick Charles, is reported on the same authority to have left Metz sick of typhus fever, and gone to Verrieres.

M. Gambetta, in his proclamation to the French people of the Departments, says Paris presents the spectacle of two millions of men forgetting their differences to oppose the invader. The revolution found Paris without arms; 560,000 men are now under arms within her walls. The foundries cast cannon; the women make a million of cartridges daily; each battalion of the Garde Natlonale has two mitrailleuses and field pieces prepared for sorties; the forts are manned by marines; the walls on the 4th of September, had only 500 cannon, now they have 3,800, with 400 rounds for each. In this view what Paris expects the Departments to do is to resist torpor and panic; to make the war one of occupation, and, with the Winter rains as allies, France will not lose its place in the world through the invasion of half a million of men. The energy of M. Gambetta in the administration of the War Departmsnt of France is spoken of as likely to give a new direction to military affairs, and in conjunction with the influence of Garibaldi in stirring up the demoralized French, to retrieve the bad fortune which has hitherto attended the French arms. Garibaldi announced yesterday in Tours that he was to have command of all the volunteers in the French Army. He paid a tribute to the valor of volunteers, and expressed the conviction that the invader would soon be driven from France.

From the papers of the 12th we learn that an engagement took place on Monday between a detachment of the army of the Crown Prince, under Gen. Von der Tann, and the French Army of the Loire, in which, according to a London telegram, 1,000 prisoners and three pieces of cannon were taken from the French, who fled in disorder. The French General's report of the conflict to the Minister of War says that a brigade and several companies of Chasseurs were attacked by a considerable force of Prussians, at Artenay, at 9 A. M., and succeeded in occupying the place. The French were reinforced by five regiments, four battalions, and a battery of eight guns, but, at 3 P. M., they were driven into a forest, which the General in command said he should defend at all hazards. The Prussians outnumbered the French. A Tours dispatch says much indignation is felt there that the French were not properly reinforced, as there were troops of that city [illegible] the battle field is only three hours' distant by rail. The same dispatch says it was understood fihting was renewed yesterday morning. The latest accounts by way of London from the battle-field represent the Prussian cavalry in pursuit of the French troops.

A Rouren correspondent telegraphs that the French Government is more anxious to relieve Metz than Paris even, as in the former place are 800,000 Chassepot rifles and vast quantities of ammunition and military stores. On Sunday, cannonading continued all day at Metz. In the last encounter there, the Prussians are said to have taken 2,000 prisoners. Disease is prevalent in the town, and rinderpest among the cattle of the neighborhood.

From the papers of the 13th we learn that Messengers sent from Tours to Orleans during the progress of the battle on Tuesday, report that the French were outnumbered and crushed by the superior artilery of the Germans, and driven back to the suburbs of the town. There they took shelter behind barricades which had previously been erected. The Papal Zouaves and Gardes Mobiles behaved well, it is reported, but the regular troops fled at the first fire, many throwing away their arms in their flight. The Prussians open fire on the town, setting fire to it in many places and burning the railroad station. At a late hour on Tuesday evening they had advanced as far as Beaugency and Meung, seventeen miles beyond Orleans on the Tours Railroad. It is apprehended that the Papal Zouaves will be surrounded and captured. Heavy guns have been sent forward from Bourges, and the troops at Beaugency and Meung are spoken of as effective. Gen. Garibaldi left yesterday morning for the field. Troops are moving from Tours with dispatch toward the scene of the recent engagement. Later official reports from Beaugency say that the Prussians entered Orleans on Tuesday night, and that the French now occupy the left or opposite bank of the Loire, where heavy reinforcements have reached them, including ten batteries of field artillery.

One dispatch from Tours yesterday says that a battle was fought west of Paris, between St. Cloud and Fort Mont Valerien, in which the French were victorious; and another, received here later, says that no news from the besieged city was received yesterday. A dispatch from Chateaudun, by way of Taurs, reports a repulse of the Prussians with loss at Dreux, thirty miles west of Paris. Bomshells, to contain 140 pounds of powder are being forwarded from Germany for the bombardment of Paris. Gen. La Motterouge has been relieved of the command at Tours, and Gen. Paladine appointed in his place. The French Government has repeated its determination to retaliate for all the Prussian executions. M. Gambetta is reported to be acting with great energy in the organization of the army. Full returns of all under arms in France are required, and agents have been sent into the provinces to organize military movements. A Tours telegram says severe fighting has been resumed before St. Quentin. The latest news from Lyons represents the people flying in all directions. The Prussian commander at Strasbourg has impressed the carpenters, masons and other artisans into service.

From the papers of the 14th we see that a special correspondent at the German head-quarters before Paris telegrahs, on the authority of the official orders of the King, that the bombardment of the French capital will begin between the 18th and 19th of this month. On this subject, a Berlin dispatch of the 12th inst., says that the bombardment may be momentarily expected. The telegrams from French sources continue to represent the city as fully prepared for the attack, and the ardor of the defenders at the highest degree. The occupation of Orleans is confirmed by reports from Berlin of the 11th inst. The military operations in that region seem to be confined, on the part of the French, to the strengthening of their position on the left bank of the Loire. The Prussians have burned the town of Ablie, where, they assert, the municipal authorities behaved treacherously on its first occupation, affording an opportunity to the Francs-Tireurs for a surprise. The change of General in command at Tours is confirmed, the order making the change having been published. Gen. Bourbaki, it is said has accepted a command there. The Postal and Telegraphic Departments of the Government have been united under [illegible] and the new Government has adopted a [illegible] problems expressive of the new [illegible] Our Rouen correspondent [illegible] that the Germans are advanced [illegible] Amens, occupying Gournay, and [illegible] atening the only communication [illegible] an the western and northern por[illegible] of France. The discord between the civil and military authorities is represented to be productive, in this region, of deplorable results, among which is the scattering of 15,000 French soldiers between Rouen and Amiens, under the orders of everybody. Another dispatch says that the Germans have turned from St. Quentin and threaten Amiens, having advanced as far as Breteuil, within about fifteen miles of that city. The French are reported to have made a successful sortie from Montmedy, nnd re-occupied Stenay. Cannonading had been heard at Thionville all day Wednesday, according to an Arlon dispatch. The engagement of the 7th inst., near Metz resulted in the repulse of the French, who made another effort to break through the German lines, with tremendous loss. The Prussians captured many prisoners. The cattle in the country surrounding Metz are perishing from rinderpest more rapidly than the carcases can be buried, and in consequence the disease is spreading rapidly. The fire of the French from the fortifications is incessant. The diary of Minister Washbourne shows that the attack of the French mob on the Uuited States Vice-Consulate in Paris was the subject of a diplomatic correspondent between the Minister and M. Favre.

From the papers of the 15th we see that M. Gambetta has issued a proclamation to the inhabitants of Tours, conveying the information that on the 12th inst, the people of Paris, impatient of Prussian delay in attacking them, marched forward upon the enemy, driving them back from the positions on the entire circumference of Paris, which they had been occupying since three weeks. The proclamation details the position from which the Germans have been obliged to retire, and invites the provinces to do their duty as Paris has done hers. A London dispatch says the terible fire of the Mont Valerien fortifications has swept the country round about. Even a portion of Chatemetre the Prussian works have been destroyed, all the batteries attempted to be constructed by them having been swept away. The Chateau of Meudon has been destroyed, and the Prussians driven from Clamart, Meudon and Montretout. Villejuif and Cacham have both been retaken by the French. The telegrams confirm the facts set forth in M. Gambetta's proclamation. The dispatches from Versailles states that court-martial in the Prussian lines makes short work with deserters. The French General commanding at Orleans in the recent engagement, makes an official report of the battle, in which he says that his corps was on the way to Paris when he encountered the Germans. The fighting was obstinate, but the superior Prussian artillery broke his lines. The crossing of the Loire was effected in good order. A Tours dispatch, of yesterday, say the Prussians seem to have retired from their advanced position to the South of Orleans. The successful sorties of the the Parisians cause intense excitement at Tours. Gen. Bourbaki has received an ovation from the troops and citizens of the town. All the lines communicating from Tours with the western section of the country, are still open. Reports from the Sub-Prefect of Pont L' Eveque, to the 12th inst., confirm the announced successes of the sorties by Marshal Bazaine. He has burned five villages which sheltered the Prussians, dislodged them from several positions, and cut to pieces four regiments of cavalry. At the same time Marshal Canrobert made a successful sortie on the left bank of the Moselle. The Prussians report a mutiny imminent among the soldiers in Metz. The French fortresses in the north of France are prepared for siege. Each canton of France is required to furnish a battalion of troops for the defense of the country, and there are 2,850 cantons.

From the papers of the 17th we learn that a dispatch from the Prussian headquarters at Versailles says that the reports of the French successes before Paris are to rekindle the courage of the people; that the Prussians still hold the positions occupied by them Sept. 19, and that but small skirmishes occurred last week. A diary of a Parisian, which fell into German hands, represent that but two months' supplies remain in the city, and the only way is to act on the offensive. A diary of events in Paris from the 8th to the 12th of October is telegraphed from Tours, M. Jules Favre is acting ad interim for M. Gambettr. Proceedings had been instituted against Gustave Flourens for an alleged attempt at insurrection. Gen. Sheridan, in a letter to a friend in Washington, says the shirking and desertion in the German and French armies are about in the same proportion as in our armies during the war of the Rebellion. He thinks the fall of Paris a mere question of time. The cattle in Paris are reported, in a Berlin dispatch, to be infected with rinderpest. It is officially stated from Tours that the hostile armies are face to face, in strong force, at La Ferte St. Aubin, a small village thirteen miles to the southward of Orleans, and that a battle is imminent there. The French are sending reinforcements forward. This indicates that the French have abandoned the south bank of the Loire, and that the Prussians have followed them. A brother of Marshal Bazaine denies that the General has refused to recognize the Republic, or that he held Metz for Napoleon. A Prussian dispatch brings a rumor that Bazaine has sent an officer to Versailles to treat for the surrender of Metz. Prussian dispatches represent that Soissons, after an obstinate defense of four days, had capitulated to the Germans. The French outposts at Rouen were attacked by the Prussians on the 15th inst., the French holding their ground. Les Andelys, within a few miles of that city, has been occupied by the German cavalry.

Important to Disabled Soldiers.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

The Board of Managers of the National Asylum for disabled soldiers give notice that they are prepared to receive beneficiaries into the Central Asylum at Dayton, Ohio, or its branches located at Augusta, Me., Milwaukie, Wis., and Hampton, Va. The latter is exclusively for colored soldiers.

The requirements are: First, an honorable discharge from the volunteer service. Second, disability by wounds received; or sickness contracted in line of duty.

If the applicant is unable to travel, or for other sufficient cause, relief will be furnished under the direction of the Manager to whom application is made.

The Asylum is intended as a "Home" for life, or during good behavior and is in no sense an "Almshouse."

It is supported by fines and forfeitures of deserters from the army. Suitable compensation will be given for profitable labor. Good behavior will insure the kindest treatment.

Persons posessing the necessary requirements and who desire to avail themselves of the benefits of the Asylum, can obtain admission by applying to

NORTH CAROLINIAN.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1870.

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

Notice.
Belvidere Academy.
Court Notice.

Local and Personal.

☞ IMPORTANT NOTICE.—If any of our readeas fail to receive the NORTH CAROLINIAN after this issue they will know the reason—they have not paid for it. We cannot afford to furnish our paper gratuitously, nor are we disposed to wait until the "day of judgment" for payment. In some instances this remissness has, doubtless, been the result of oversight or thoughtlessness. All such will now promptly remit Two Dollars and have the paper continued.

☞ Beautiful—the Flower Gardens in town.

☞ Mr. WHEDBEE has gone to Boston for a large stock of Boots and Shoes. His advertisement will appear when he returns.

☞ We learn that JOHN L. NEWBY, of Belvidere, died on the 8th inst. He was one of the oldest citizens of that place and was the last son of the family from which "Newby's Bridge" took its name.

☞ We neglected, in our last issue, to call attention to the advertisement of HERENDEEN & Co. It is an old and reliable firm. Persons wanting Flower seeds, Bulbs, Ornamental or Fruit trees, can do no better than to send them their orders.

☞ The latest styles of Cord and Silk Reps and Silk and Wool Velours for Ladies Dresses, can be found at the young Merchants, J. Salomonsky & Co.

☞ The "Westmoreland property" advertised on our fourth page is a very desirable one. It is high, good land and beautifully situated. It is admirably adapted for all the grains, grasses and fruits. The buildings are centrally located, &c.

☞ The Planing Mill, Sash, Door and Blind Factory of the Land & Lumber Company, will soon be in operation. It will be an extensive establishment. They are manufacturing an immense amount of Lumber at their Saw Mill. They are receiving continual orders, all of which are promptly filled.

☞ By notice published in the NORTH CAROLINIAN it will be seen that application will be made to the General Assembly for a change in the charter of this City. As we do not exactly know what the proposed changes are, we are not prepared to speak upon the merits of the case. We trust however that it will not assume a partisan aspect, but that the general good will be consulted.

☞ Yielding to an over anxiety to return to our our office and to attend to a large amount of accumulated business we "over did" the matter, had a relapse and have been confined to our room for another week. We have prepared the most of the matter for this issue under considerable difficulty—on our back, in bed. Our readers will appreciate it and be indulgent enough to overlook any short comings in this weeks paper. We feel thankful that we are able to announce that we are in a fair way of complete recovery.

☞ Among the recent parties moving to this section not yet referred to in our paper are ELIAS GARDINIER family and brother, from Springville, N. Y., JOSEPH EVANS and family from Muncy, Pa; and YEATMAN EARLE and family from Middletown, Pa. They have all purchased farms in this county. They are gentlemen of character and enterprise and will make valuable acquisitions to our population A hearty welcome to all such, and to this sentiment all our people respond Amen!

☞ By the following notice which we clip from the Norfolk Journal it will be seen that the Steamer "Hackensack," regularly stopping at our harbor, has been very seriously damaged by fire. The accident occurred on Thursday morning last.

Yesterday morning, about 2 o'clock, an accidental fire, supposed to have originated from the heat of the boilers, broke out on board the steamer Hackensack, of Baltimore, Captain Wm. C Norton, while lying in the slip of Niemeyer, Etheridge & Brooks. Promptly to the alarm, the fire department turned out and were soon on the ground, and by their vigorous exertions, within twenty minutes succeeded in staying the fierceness of the flames and prevented the total destruction of the steamer. We have rarely seen the department worked with more efficiency and such remarkable promptitude. The brake engine "Vigilant," although not the first on the ground, succeeded in getting the first stream on, and displayed her excellence in time of an emergency. The three engines, "Palmer," "Virginia," and "Vigilant," worked immediately alongside the burning vessel, and incessantly deluged it from stem to stern until every spark was extinguished. The "Friendship" Hook and Ladder company was prompt to time, but was not wanted, of course.

The Hackensack is about half burned, and is not insured. She had just arrived from Baltimore a few hours previous to the fire, and had on board a $35,000 freight, consisting of general merchandise, consigned to Portsmouth and North Carolina. The freight is considerably damaged, and is insured, we learn. The Hackensack is owned in Baltimore.

☞ The finest stock of Boots and Shoes, Philadelphia make, for Ladies and Men's wear sold at the young Merchants, J. Salomonsky & Co.

☞ A party of young ladies and gentlemen had the face to ask us to take a sail on last evening, knowing at the time that our Editor was confined to his room Why, young ladies and gentlemen, we are surprised at you.

☞ We take great pleasure in calling attention to the advertisement of the "Belvidere Academy," published in this weeks NORTH CAROLINIAN. We have visited the Institute and are safe in saying that it is a model one. We do not believe there is a better conducted School in the State.

☞ Capt. W. A. HARNEY, Agt., of the D. S. S. T. Co., wishes the person, who by mistake or otherwise received a caddie o' tobacco, marked WM. MORRIS, to return the same. The accommodating Agent says mistakes will occur sometimes, and should the person who has the tobacco return it there would of course be no questions asked.

☞ T. T. WHITCOMB has one of the best and largest stocks of Groceries in the City. Remember the location is on the Corner of Main and Water Streets.

☞ The young men of our city seem to like the exercise of the Ten Pin Alley. Curiosity led us—one of the employees of this office—to try a game evening before last. Very much to our dissatisfaction we left with a "smashed up" finger, not to return again if we know ourself.

☞ The latest styles and well assorted stock of Double and Single Shawls sold cheap at the young Merchants, J. Salomonsky & Co.

☞ We have received several complaints similar to the following, and from the same place, within the past three months. "What can the matter be?" The NORTH CAROLINIANS are regularly mailed to "Powell's Point," and they should reach there regularly. If we can find out who is guilty of obstructing their passage, either wilfully or through neglect, we shall certainly give them some special attention.

POWELL'S POINT, N. C., Oct. 12th, 1870.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

I subscribed for your paper the first of July, and have not received it regularly. There are five papers received. I would like to learn the cause. I like your paper and am disappointed in not getting it.

Very Respectfully,
WILLIS G. PARTRIDGE.

☞ T. T. WHITCOMB has removed to the store formerly occupied by WM. SHANNON, on the Corner of Main and Road Streets.

☞ The Fair and Feast, under the supervision of the ladies of this place, which has been in progress for the last three days, was we understand a perfect success. The ladies deserve credit for thus making an effort to relieve the Church of a debt which has been accumulating for a number of years. The ladies propose, on the 20th of December next, to have a similar Fair and Feast, at which they feel confident, a sufficient amount will be raised to pay the debt.

☞ A call from the Ladies and our Customers generally, will be appreciated by the young Merchants in Barney Tisdales Store on Road St., Elizabeth City, N. C. J. Salomonsky & Co.

☞ We announced in our last that the place of holding the U. S. District Court for the Albemarle District had been changed from Edenton to Elizabeth City. The first session under the new Act commenced at this place on Monday, His Honor GEO. W. BROOKS presiding with the modest dignity and great ability always characterizing him as a Judge. His Charge to the Jury we were prevented from hearing, but we learn that it was eloquent, pointed and just such a Charge as was expected from so learned and able a jurist as Judge BROOKS has shown himself to be. A number of distinguished gentlemen and members of the legal profession are in attendence, among them are Hon. D. H. STARBUCK, U. S. District Attorney, Hon. S. T. CARROW, U. S. Marshal, G. B. HARRIS, Esq., of Granville, N. C., W. E. BOND, Esq., formerly U. S. Int. Rev. Collector for this District, and others of note. We regret that our confinement to our room prevented us from making their acquaintance. There was but one case on the Criminal docket ready for trial, and that was W. C. DAWSON charged with violating the Revenue law in taking Photographs without a license. Mr. DAWSON was tried and acquitted. The Court is now occupied with the Civil list. We go to press too early for any extended report. Will give them in our next.

The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia has decided that the claim for the reward of $20,000 for the capture of the assassin of President Lincoln is invalid.

Troy is now almost as famous for scandals as Chicago. Nearly every issue of the local papers contain reports of elopements, abductions or threatened shootings. The very latest story is of a conductor who recently left his own wife, with the small consolation of a return

The ladies of Louisville, Ky., desire answers to the following questions: "What do the men do at clubs? Are clubs immoral? How much does it cost to belong to one of them? Do they prevent young men from marrying? Are they a a sign of civilization or of corruption and decadence?"

If you have sallow, color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, dulliness, drowsiness, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, tongue coated, internal heat, unsteady appetite, low spirits, gloomy forebodings, you are suffering from liver complaint or biliousness, and nothing else will relieve and cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Alt. The Secretary of State having notified the Treasury Department that he has received information that the rinderpest has again broken out in Germany, Mr. Boutwell, issued a circular to Collectors of ports, directing them to allow no importation of meat cattle or hides from any foreign country, except Canada, unless the accompanying invoice has appended to it a Consular certificate that the cattle disease is not prevalent, and has not been recently, in the country from whence they were exported, and that the Consul is satisfied that the importation is free from disease.

Females, old and young, who have so long been troubled with some female complaint, should not despair. Let us whisper words of comfort. You can be cured. You can be snatched from the monster which has so long prostrated and paralyzed your whole system. You can regain your health, your beauty, your strength and buoyancy. Take courage, despond not, be cheerful; a remedy is at hand, prepared by experienced physicians, specially for just such diseases as afflict you; and as the profession are using and prescribing this remedy with much success, we feel proud in calling your attention to it. It comes highly recommend, and we earnestly advise all suffering females to use this great female medicine at once. We allude to the "English Female Bitters," advertised in another column. 4t.

A TORPID SYSTEM.

Sometimes, without any assignable cause, the physical strength and animal spirits give way, and a strange nervous chill falls alike on the body and intellect. There is little or no pain perhaps, but the mental fatigue and lassitude of the nervous and muscular systems seem to have departed, and an indifference to the pleasures of life, and even of its grave responsibilities, takes the place of that earnest interest in both which characterizes every well balanced mind when in a healthy condition.

This state of partial collapse is often the premonitory symptoms of some serious malady. It indicates unmistakeably that the vital powers are languishing and need a stimulant. In such cases the effect of a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is wonderfully beneficial. The great tonic wakes up the system from its dreams. The secretions and the circulation receive a new impetus. The relaxed nerves recover their elasticity under the operations of the specific, like the slackened strings of a musical instrument in the process of tuning. Lethargy and debility are replaced by energy and vigor, the spirits rise, and life that almost seemed a burden while the depression lasted, becomes once more enjoyable. That such a radical change should be produced by a remedy entirely devoid of the powerful alkalois and mineralls so extensively used in modern practice, is incredible to those who pin their faith on the medicinal efficacy of active poisons, but if these skeptics will take the trouble to enquire of those who have tested the corrective and alterative virtues of the Bitters under the circumsiances described, they will find the statement to be true. 4t.

SICKNESS, PAIN AND DEATH.

Legitimately result as penalties for violations of natural laws, from which none escape.

The faded cheek, the pale and wan features, the dull eye, the clouded intellect, the deep heaving sigh, the feeble and emaciated frame, the dejected brow, the tottering gate, all indicate previous transgression of law. Knowing that "procrastination is the thief of time," all intelligent beings apply for some remedy as soon as circumstances permit; while those who do not act upon the principle that "delays are dangerous," generally linger, lose more time and pay more money.

Thousands of mothers and daughters, in all stations and conditions of life, are suffering, lingering and dying from the effects of some dreaded and dreadful

FEMALE COMPLAINT,

That claims its victims throughout the length and breadth of our land.

Many females suffer in some way at each monthly period; some girls are in great peril at the commencement of menstruation, while older ones dread its decline at the "turn of life." Sometimes the menstrual flow is too much, or too little, or may be attended with pain; may be irregular or entirely checked, or changed in appearance, attended with other distressing symptoms. Leucorrhœa, or the "Whites," frequently drains the system, or ulceration of the womb may create pain and cause rapid prostration.

Falling of the womb is an exceedingly common complaint, giving much trouble and distress, which, under ordinary treatment, is difficult to cure.

Hysterics, Green Sickness, Irritability of the Womb, and other serious and fatal complaints follow the female sex throughout life. Lives there a medical gentleman who has or can relieve the fair sex of the above troubles? Not many. Is there no combination remedial agents that will come to her rescue? We answer, Yes.

ENGLISH FEMALE BITTERS,

The only acknowledged Uterine Tonic and Female Regulator known, will cure all complaints above mentioned in an incredibly short time. The Bitters at once arouses, strengthens and restores the womb to its natural condition, removing obstructions, relieving pain and regulating the monthly period. Yonder stands a pale, feeble and languid girl, just bursting into womanhood; she is the pride of all, but hark! she silently steals a pickle, eats chalk, or a slate pencil; no appetite for food; she turns with a dull eye and seeks solitude; her eye no longer sparkles; her merry laugh is no longer heard ringing through the air; she mopes about with bloodless lips and gums, with headache, palpitation, constipation, swimming of the head, cold feet and hands, melancholy; she has a coated tongue, offensive breath, and a host of other evils too numerous to mention.

When neglected all these symptoms become aggravated, there is sick stomach, heartburn, a dark line settles under the eyes, the legs and ankles are swollen, the hair loses its gloss and falls off, there is brittleness and splitting of the finger-nails, swollen abdemen, extreme nervousness, fretfulness, pains and aches, dry cough, Hysterical Fits, rapid prostration, epilepsy and death! If you, or any of your friends, are thus afflicted, send at once for a Bottle of English Female Bitters and be cured. Its effects are magical in such complaints. Surely no mother will postpone and delay this duty until

DEATH IS AT THE DOOR.

In all these complaints the system evidently shows a want of red blood, and Mr. Churchill, in his work on Diseases of Females, says: "Bearing in mind that the blood is remarkably deficient in red corpuscles, and the known property of iron to correct this condition, theory suggests it as the most to be relied on, the best of which is the Citrate." Citrate of Iron enters largely into the composition of English Female Bitters, combined with powerful vegetable tonics of rare qualities.

Among the mountains of Tennessee and the piney woods of Mississipi, is found a certain hard and flinty root, which has been in secret use by some old midwives for many years, possessing magic powers in regulating and restoring all females suffering with any affection of the womb. This root we have obtained, gave it a fair test in our practice and it is now one of the principle ingredients in these Bitters. Other powerful uterine and general tonics also enter into its composition. We also add Leptandra or Black root, sufficient to act upon the liver and keep the bowels open.

AGRICULTURAL, HORTICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC MATTERS.

Fattening Hogs.

There is no time in the year when hogs will fatten so fast as now. Feed them corn, stalks and all; so long as the corn is in the milk, the hog will chew every blade and the entire stalk. The weather is such that very little of the food is consumed to keep up animal heat, but all is used to produce flesh. Nearly one-half of all the food given to hogs during the fattening season is lost—utterly so. The following rules should be strictly observed in fattening hogs. First, have a pen for them sufficiently large for moderate exercise. Second, provide a good warm place for them to sleep; have it so covered that at all times the nest or bed will be dry, and, if possible, give them plenty of straw to sleep on. Third, have a good clean floor to feed upon, and never, on any account, throw their food into a muddy or filthy place. A wet, muddy and filthy feeding place renders the meat always more or less strong and unwholesome food for man. Fourth, four bushels of corn fed now will produce more flesh than six will in December.

The fattening properties of the different grains, and the capacity of the breed to take on fat, to convert grain into the greatest amount of pork, have been experimented upon sufficiently to form established facts.

We find that corn, the best grain for fattening, will yield ten to twelve pounds of pork to the bushel when fed in the ear. When it is ground, several pounds more are gained. When it is, further, steamed or scalded, there is still greater increase, running the bushel of corn up to twenty pounds—double the amount of the same corn when fed in ear, much of which will then only be cracked and some pass whole. Grinding and steaming or scalding well will give nearly all the strength of the corn if not fed too plentifully or crowded in feeding. Fed regularly, and eaten clean, and with easy and perfect digestion, this is the way to get the strength of the corn. The manure is worth less. It may be expensive to steam food; scald it can hardly be said to be so. There are also minor members of the family that can aid in this. There are few things more apt to be neglected however. We feed corn in the kernel, or ground. When ground we think we have done well; and so we have; but piggy will do better if the artificial heat is applied, preparing the food in advance for the stomach.

Whether it is cheaper and more profitable to fatten spring pigs, I believe is a point that may be considered established.

This makes the best and cheapest pork, especially the best till late in the season, say December or January. While the average of published experiments show that spring pigs much oftener exceed 300 pounds in 250 days than wintered hogs 450 in 15 months. True, if the hog could be made to keep up the same average gain that is often secured on a pig the profit might be the same percentage on each. But as pigs from 8 to 9 months old are often made to weigh from 300 to 400 pounds net, it is doubtful whether this average increase can be kept up as much longer. When pigs or hogs are fattened up to a certain point, it seems that they cannot be fed to good advantage any longer. They are the same as finished and may as well be killed.

A little consideration will make plain to most farmers that pigs that gain from 1 to 1½ pounds a day, and hogs that average one pound a day, are profitable, when fed to the best advantage. Still some will say it must take a great deal of grain or other feed to make such fat, heavy hogs and pigs. But it has been shown by the most careful experiments that a bushel of good corn, when fed in the ear to good hogs, will average 10 pounds of pork, and has made from 12 to 15 pounds when ground or cooked, has averaged 15lbs., and when ground and cooked, or scalded, made two or three pounds more. Nathan G. Morgan of Union Springs, N. Y., who "keeps accurate account of all his operations," has found that "one bushel of corn thus prepared, (that is ground and the meal scalded,) after deducting 10 per cent. toll for grinding, and having only 54 pounds for the bushel, will give 20 pounds of pork—or at the rate of 2¾ pounds of corn for each pound of pork. When pork is 5 cents a pound, he obtains at the rate of $1 per bushel for his corn." It is true that this is one of the most favorable results of feeding hogs ever published. But the above averages are sufficiently favorable, though it would be impossible now to find room for even a small share of the published experiments that prove or sustain them.—American Stock Journal.

Value of Apples for Food.

The Western Rural says: "There is scarcely an article of vegetable food more widely useful and more universally liked than the apple. Why every farmer has not an orchard, where the trees will grow at all, is one of the mysteries. Let every housekeeper lay in a good supply of apples, and it will be the most economical investment in the whole range of culinaries. A raw mellow apple is digested in an hour and a half, while boiled cabbages require five hours. The most healthful dessert that can be placed on the table is a baked apple. If eaten frequently at breakfast, with coarse bread and butter, without flesh of any kind, it has an admirable effect on the general system, often removing constipation, correcting adidities, and cooling off febrile conditions more effectually than the most approved medicines. If families could be induced to substitute apples,—sound and ripe,—for pies, cakes and sweetmeats, with which their children are too frequently stuffed, there would be a diminution in the sum total of doctor's bills in a single year, sufficient to lay in a stock of this delicious fruit for the whole season's use."

How Hogs Sweat.—Not like a horse or a man, but through his fore legs. There is a spot on each leg, just below the knee, in the form of a sieve, through this the sweat passes off, and it is necessary that this be kept open. If it get closed, as is sometimes the case, the hog will get sick. To cure him, simply open the pores. This is done by rubbing and washing with warm water.—Rural World.

Water for Animals.—For humanity's sake see well to the watering places for cattle, for in many small ponds a master cow will take her fill, and then stand up to her knees and hooks for hours, preventing the greater part of the herd from drinking. Doubtless if the origin of many diseases could be traced, they would be found to run back to the injury sustained by the constitution in suffering for want of water in hot and dry weather.—Country Gentleman.

Pet your Young Stock.—It is best to handle calves and colts as much as possible, and pet them, lead them with a halter, and caress them in various ways. Young stock managed in this way will always be docile and suffer themselves to be approached and handled, both in the pastures and in the barn.

An Unmixed Evil—Neat Gin.

A Night-Charge—A squalling bady.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WESTMORELAND.

The undersigned gives notice, that the Westmoreland Plantation, on which he now resides, is for sale.

Westmoreland, is in Pasquotank county, 12 miles from Elizabeth City, near Newbegun Creek. It contains about 825 acres; of which about 125 acres are in wood, conveniently located. The woodland is abundant to supply the Plantation, and there is a lot of Cypress, which will afford building material, for the place for all time to come. The land lies nearly in a square, and is surrounded by four good public roads, which intersect each other, at right angles. There are about 700 acres in cultivation; it is in a high state of improvement, well drained, and produces heavy crops. The whole Plantation, is enclosed with a Juniper and Cypress rail fence, of the best quality, and will require but little repairs, for many years. There are three fields fenced off, each connecting with the Barn Lot, one of 100 acres, one of 60 acres, and one of 50 acres, convenient for small grain, clover or pasturage. The lands produce Corn, Cotton, Wheat, Oats and Peas, in great abundance, and grows Clover, and the grases most luxurtantly. It is well adapted to all sorts of garden vegetables. There is an abundant supply of fruit for the use of a large family, consisting of the finest Standard Pears, bearing abundantly, from the 15th of July to the 15th of October. Peaches, Cherries, Plums and a lot of dwarf Pears, Peaches, Apricots, Apples and Cherries, set out last fall. A fine lot of Raspberry bushes, from which, there are picked daily, during the season, from 2 to 4 Gallons of berries. A large and thrifty Scuppernong Grape Vine, and Isabella grape vines, bearing luxuriantly, and a fine lot of fig bushes, in full bearing. The buildings are located in a large and beautiful grove of forest trees. The lot is high and pleasant. The main Dwelling House, is a large and elegant building, with 6 rooms, 5 of them with fire places, a large Hall, 12 feet wide, a large pantry and a verandah, on both the North and South sides of the house, all perfectly and elegantly finished. Attached to the main building is a wing 25x30 feet, two stories high, well finished. This building can, very well be used for a separate family. There are two kitchens or cook-houses, two smoke houses, two poultry houses, dairies, and indeed every out-building required for a large family, and sufficient for the accommodation of two or three families.

The farm buildings comprise four tenant houses, each 2 rooms, 3 small barns for tenants use, tool-house, blacksmith shep, a barn, now used for a Gin House 20x32 feet; a large barn 42x72 feet; and a stock house two stories high, 30x50 feet, the upper story used as a hay loft, with a shed on each side.

There are two wells of water, which are said to be among the best in the country. The barn is ½ of a mile from the creek, where all the produce is delivered, on vessels. There are four roads leading from the lot to the four main roads, one running North, one East, one South and one West, and each about ½ of a mile to the main road. Westmoreland has long been acknowledged as one of, if indeed it is not the most valuable plantation, in the county, or in Eastern North Carolina.

Persons wishing to purchase, are invited to come and examine the property, every effort will be made to enable visitors to form a correct opinion. There have been 6 or 8 farms, adjacent to this one, sold to Northern men, within a year past.

My price is $30 per acre. I refer to Dr. P. John; Hon. G. W. Brooks; T. D. Pendleton, Esq., R. F. Overman, Cashr., and Col. W. F. Martin, of Elizabeth City, N. C.

TO PHYSICIANS

New York, May 5th, 1870

Allow me to call your attention to my

PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU.

Mode of Preparation.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of the ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflamation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,
of 16 Years' Experience.

(FROM THE LARGEST MANUFACTURING CHEMISTS IN THE WORLD.)

November 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers & Weightman,
Manufacturing Chemists,
Ninth and Brown streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

The constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

USE HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU.

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

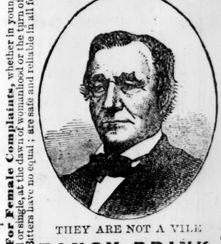
The Great Medical Discovery!

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?



They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the power of relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys and all the Internal Organs.

For Female Complaints, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal; are safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$1000 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

Purify the blood, the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.
